DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action is in response to applicant's amendments filed on June 13, 2006.
2. Claims 43-63,73,74,76 and 77 are pending. Claims 1-42,64-72,75 and 78-92 are cancelled.
3. In view of applicant's cancellation of claim 75, the objection to the claim is withdrawn.
4. Claims 43-63 and 73,74,76 and 77 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Verma et al. (US 6,004,476) in view of Chandler et al. (US 5,577,388) for the reasons set forth in the previous office action. The rejection of the claims is maintained.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments regarding the combination of the Verma and Chandler references have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

The applicants argue:

"The absorption fluids of the invention and Chandler et al. are vastly different. Specifically, a heteropoly complex anion of a transition metal element is not the same as using a very small amount of amine. There is no teaching or suggestion in either of the references to make such a modification."

Art Unit: 1751

The examiner respectfully disagrees. The examiner asserts that Chandler et al. is simply relied upon to cure the deficiencies of Verma et al. regarding the addition of alkali metal hydroxides in percentages of about 20 to about 80 weight percent as instantly claimed. Chandler et al., in the analogous art of absorption solutions for refrigeration systems (column 4, lines 10-20), teaches that optimum energy storage potentials are realized when sodium hydroxide is present in the fluids from percentages of 35-75% (column 2, lines 1-10). Chandler et al. further discloses it is preferred to add a mixture of two alkali metal hydroxides to the fluids in a total hydroxide concentration of about 30 to about 80% (column 1, lines 65-67; column 2, lines 1-5).

Therefore, there is strong motivation to combine the teachings of Chandler et al. with the teachings of Verma et al., which is also directed towards absorption solutions for refrigeration systems (column 3, lines 1-10), for the added benefit of optimization of energy storage potentials. It is prima facie obvious to combine the two compounds, each taught for the same purpose, to yield a third composition for that very purpose. In re Kerkhoven, 205 USPQ 1069, In re Pinten, 173 USPQ 801, and In re Susi, 169 USPQ 423 when ingredients are well known and combined for their known properties, the combination is obvious absent unexpected results. A person of ordinary skill in the refrigerant absorption fluid art would expect combinations of these materials to behave in the same fashion as the individual materials, absent unexpected results.

Accordingly, the rejection of the claims is maintained.

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
